

McDonald Bradley Announces “5th Annual Client Golf Invitational” Company Tournament to Benefit Teardrops to Rainbows

HERNDON, VA—March 30, 2005— McDonald Bradley, Inc., a rapidly-growing information technology solutions provider to the government marketplace, today announced that it will sponsor the 5th Annual McDonald Bradley Client Golf Invitational that will take place on Monday, May 9th at the at River Creek Club in Leesburg, Virginia. All proceeds from the golf tournament will be donated to Teardrops to Rainbows, a 501(c)(3) organization, created to improve the quality of life for children with cancer and their families.

“We are excited to sponsor this charity event for the fifth year to support the important role that Teardrops to Rainbows plays in our local community,” said Ken Bartee, President and CEO. “We have had a long-standing business association with PGA professionals that has successfully enabled us to foster both our working relationships that help us grow our business and our philanthropic activities that help us enrich our community.”

Participating in this “invitation-only” event will be more than 150 business, government and IT Executives, from the Washington, DC metropolitan area. Playing along with the local participants will be two professional golfers -- Lucas Glover and Angela Stanford, two celebrated PGA/LPGA Tour members rapidly gaining international attention.

Lucas Glover returns to the PGA Tour after an extremely successful rookie season where he earned over $550,000 and finished 134th on money list, 4th in driving distance, and carded two top ten finishes. Lucas Glover is a two-time, first-team All American and three-time, first-team All Atlantic Coast Conference champion, at Clemson University.

Angela Stanford's Rookie year was 2001; since then she has recorded two top 10 Finishes, including a runner-up finish in the 2003 Women's US Open. Angela won nine collegiate tournaments, while attending Texas Christian University. She was a four-time All-American and a four-time All-WAC selection. She was named 1997 WAC Freshman of the Year and 1999 WAC Player of the Year. Stanford was a member of the 2000 U. S. Curtis Cup Team, a semifinalist at the British Amateur Championship and winner of the 2000 WAC Championship.

The Company has been recognized for its sports marketing initiatives by executives in local government and business circles. Federal Computer Week, in the February 23, 2004 issue, singled out Ken Bartee for his use of well-known, professional golfers as an important component of the Company's unique promotional approach.

Throughout the past eleven years, McDonald Bradley has taken an active role in providing both professional involvement and leadership in a number of carefully chosen professional, civic and charitable organizations. From the executive management team to the rank and file employees, the Company culture fosters individual involvement in a variety of causes to support staff contribution to the enrichment of the community. The Company has formalized such support through its Corporate Events Committee comprised of company volunteers. This group targets new charities each year and plans company-sponsored fund-raising events to deliver financial backing. For five years, the annual Company-sponsored McDonald Bradley Client Golf Invitational has raised funds for local organizations.

Teardrops to Rainbows was founded in September 2002. The organization strives to help families stay connected and better manage their daily routines and household responsibilities while supporting a cancer-stricken child. They do this by providing financial assistance to cover services such as childcare and housecleaning that make more time available for parents to devote to their sick children and their siblings. They also assist with expenses such as cell phone service to improve family members' ability to stay in touch with each other and Internet service that may be used for communication, medical research and access to other information. The organization also sponsors social activities that help to bring affected family members together. Teardrops to Rainbows is specifically focused on helping pediatric oncology patients undergoing treatment at local area hospitals such as Inova Fairfax Hospital for Children and Georgetown Hospital.
